Â The Future. Patch.Q: Java force fetch entire row that matches my query I've been trying to do something like this:
Connection conn; String sql = "select * from table where key = " + key; try { conn = DriverManager.getConnection(strURL); PreparedStatement ps = conn.prepareStatement(sql); ResultSet rs = ps.executeQuery(); if (rs.next()) { //do something } } The reason I'm doing that is because I have different tables with the same name. My question is: is there a way to get the entire row that has the same key, or the first value returned by the query? A: You need to make use of ResultSetMetaData. Something like this will do the job: String sql = "select * from table where key = " + key; PreparedStatement ps = conn.prepareStatement(sql); ResultSet rs = ps.executeQuery(); // get the column names and types ResultSetMetaData rsMeta = rs.getMetaData(); int columnCount = rsMeta.getColumnCount(); while (rs.next()) { // Get column values and set them to your variables for (int i = 1;

In Escherichia coli, the activity of the growth-transcription regulator, DnaA, is believed to be regulated indirectly through DNA replication by the bacterial transcription regulator, Crp. A primary mechanism by which DnaA is regulated is via ATP-dependent remodeling of the nucleosome structure, an event important to allow access of DnaA to the replication origin.

Recent evidence suggests a new direct mechanism of DnaA regulation through direct binding to the replication origin and through modulation of the nucleosome structure at the Dna f30f4ceada
